

Dr. Pallavi received her B.A (English Honours) from GCG-11 and M.A (with Literature and Linguistics) from the Department of English and Cultural Studies, Panjab University, Chandigarh. She received her Ph.D in Semiotics from BPS Women University, Khanpur Kalan, Sonipat and she has teaching experience of more than seven years. Her areas of interest are Semiotics, Linguistics, Applied Linguistics, African Literature, South-African Studies and Cultural Studies. She has presented several papers both nationally and internationally. She has to her credit more than ten papers published in various reputed journals (print and online). She has been an invited author for GJHSS (Global Journal for Human-Social Science, USA).